Red Dot Design Award

The origins of the Red Dot Design Award date back to 1955. The institution behind the competition is the Design Zentrum NRW, which is led by Professor Dr. Peter Zec since 1991. Its distinction, the "Red Dot", is established internationally as one of the most sought-after quality marks for good design. In order to assess the diversity in the field of design in a thorough and professional manner, the award breaks down into three competitions: the "Red Dot Award: Product Design", "Red Dot Award: Communication Design" and "Red Dot Award: Design Concept" – each is organised once a year. From products to communication projects and packaging to design concepts and prototypes, the Red Dot Award documents the most prominent trends worldwide. The award-winning designs are exhibited in the Red Dot Design Museums.

Evaluation

The products, communication projects and concepts entered in the Red Dot Award are evaluated by an expert jury. It is comprised of independent designers, design professors and specialised journalists who have committed to a "Code of Honour": They can neither be employed by an industrial manufacturing company nor participate in the adjudication of products in which they were involved in any way. This aims at preventing any situation in which the members of the Red Dot jury assess their own achievements or those of direct competitors. The evaluation is carried out directly on the object, live and on site. The submissions do not compete with each other. Every draft, seen individually, is tested, discussed and assessed. Depending on the competition, the adjudication process is based on a range of criteria that are constantly adapted to current standards.

manufacturers and designers can submit their industrial products in 47 categories at present.

Moreover, every year, young professionals – designers who have obtained their academic qualifications within the past five years – have the chance to apply for the raffle for one out of 50 free places in the competition. In doing so, they can measure themselves against renowned designers in an international comparison and put their know-how to the test.

A winning product receives the distinction "Honourable Mention" or "Red Dot". Only the outstanding products of a category receive the award "Red Dot: Best of the Best". Since 1988, the Design Zentrum Nordrhein Westfalen furthermore grants the title of honour "Red Dot: Design Team of the Year" with the challenge cup "Radius", thereby recognising the consistently strong design achievements of a design team.

During the "Red Dot Gala" award ceremony, the Red Dot: Best of the Best winners receive their Red Dot Trophy on the stage of the Aalto Theater in Essen, Germany. Additionally, the incumbent Red Dot: Design Team of the Year hands over the Radius to the new title holder. At the "Designers' Night" aftershow party, the Red Dot and Honourable Mention winners receive their certificates, while around 1,400 international guests celebrate in the midst of the winners' exhibition in the Red Dot Design Museum Essen.

Red Dot Award: Communication Design

The Red Dot Award: Communication Design, which up until 2001 was known as "Deutscher Preis für Kommunikationsdesign" (German Prize for Communication Design), is geared to creative minds from agencies, design offices and companies with strong communication campaigns as well as to renowned designers, new talents and freelancers. They can enter their works in 21 categories. Every year, the best ideas are selected from typographies, posters, books, graphics, apps, games, websites and many more fields.

A winning work receives the distinction "Red Dot", while outstanding entries get the Red Dot: Best of the Best and only the best piece of work in a category receives the top award "Red Dot: Grand Prix". In addition, the Red Dot: Junior Prize including prize money of EUR 10,000 goes to the best piece of work by an apprentice, a student or young professional. The titles of
